Attention GPs! The Royal College of General Practitioners (RCGP) is consulting its members about whether any change should be made to the College's policy that assisting the suicide of seriously ill patients is not an appropriate part of clinical care. The consultation ends on 9th October 2013. If you are a GP, you are encouraged to respond and to make your views known on this important subject.

Supporting Catholics in Health Care: A free website for Catholics working in healthcare, which includes prayer materials, links to Catholic organisations, resources such as Cherishing Life and the Caring for the Catholic Patient series, and a series of reflections on health from the Church's teaching has launched, as part of the work of the bishops to support the Catholic presence in health—
